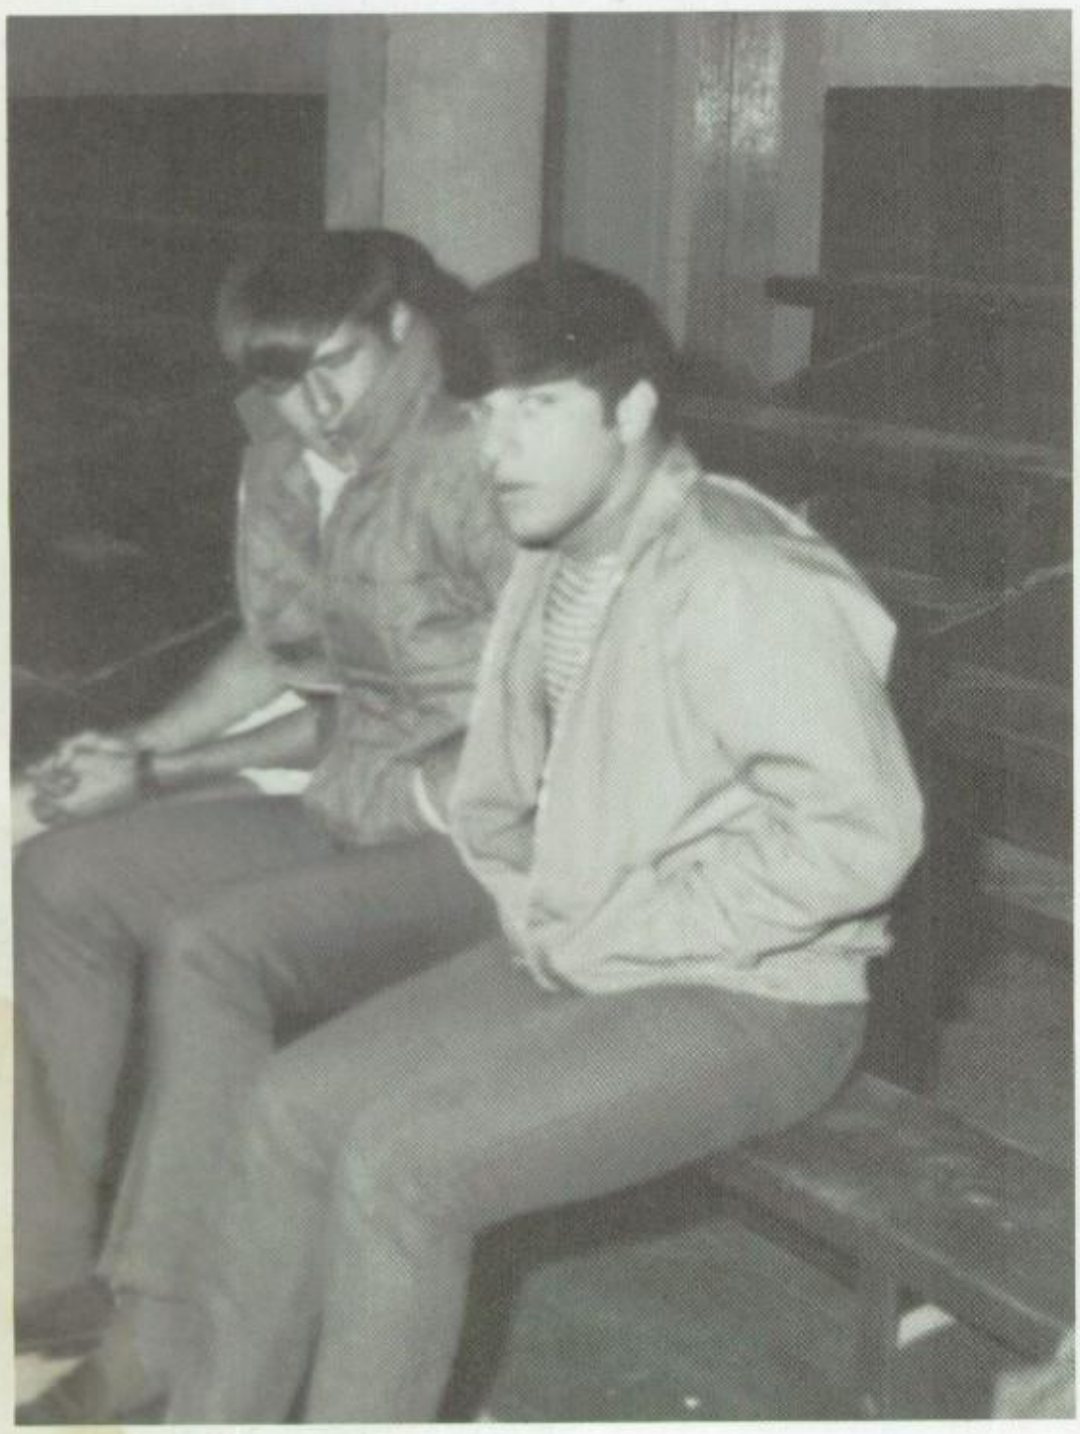
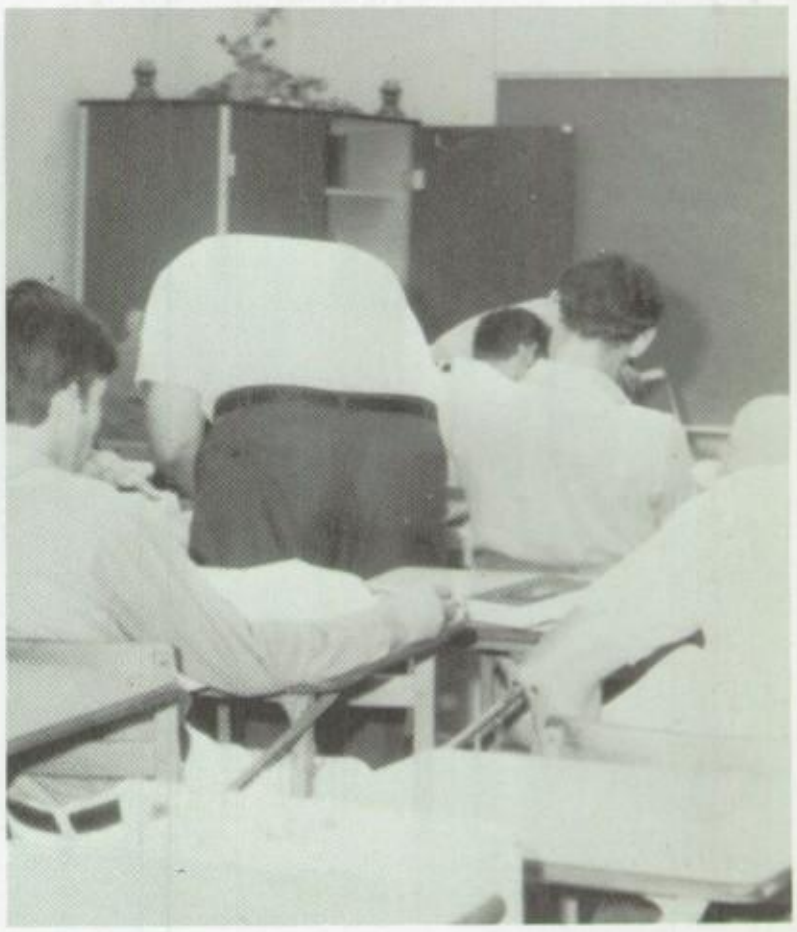
From down below the water's washing waves,
He rose, he grew, he learned, he worked, he played;
He peered into the world's most wondrous maze,
Until his foot upon the moon he laid.
But yet, while he in progress surges on,
It seems that all his civil traits are gone.
One might surmise from looking at his book,
That on some day a faulty turn he took.





If he doth wish to be a civil soul,
Then he must learn to live in peace
and love.
His life after his MAKER must he mold,
To bring about the return of the dove.
As men walk high and search the sea and sky,
Will morrow see the ape-man's glinting eye?

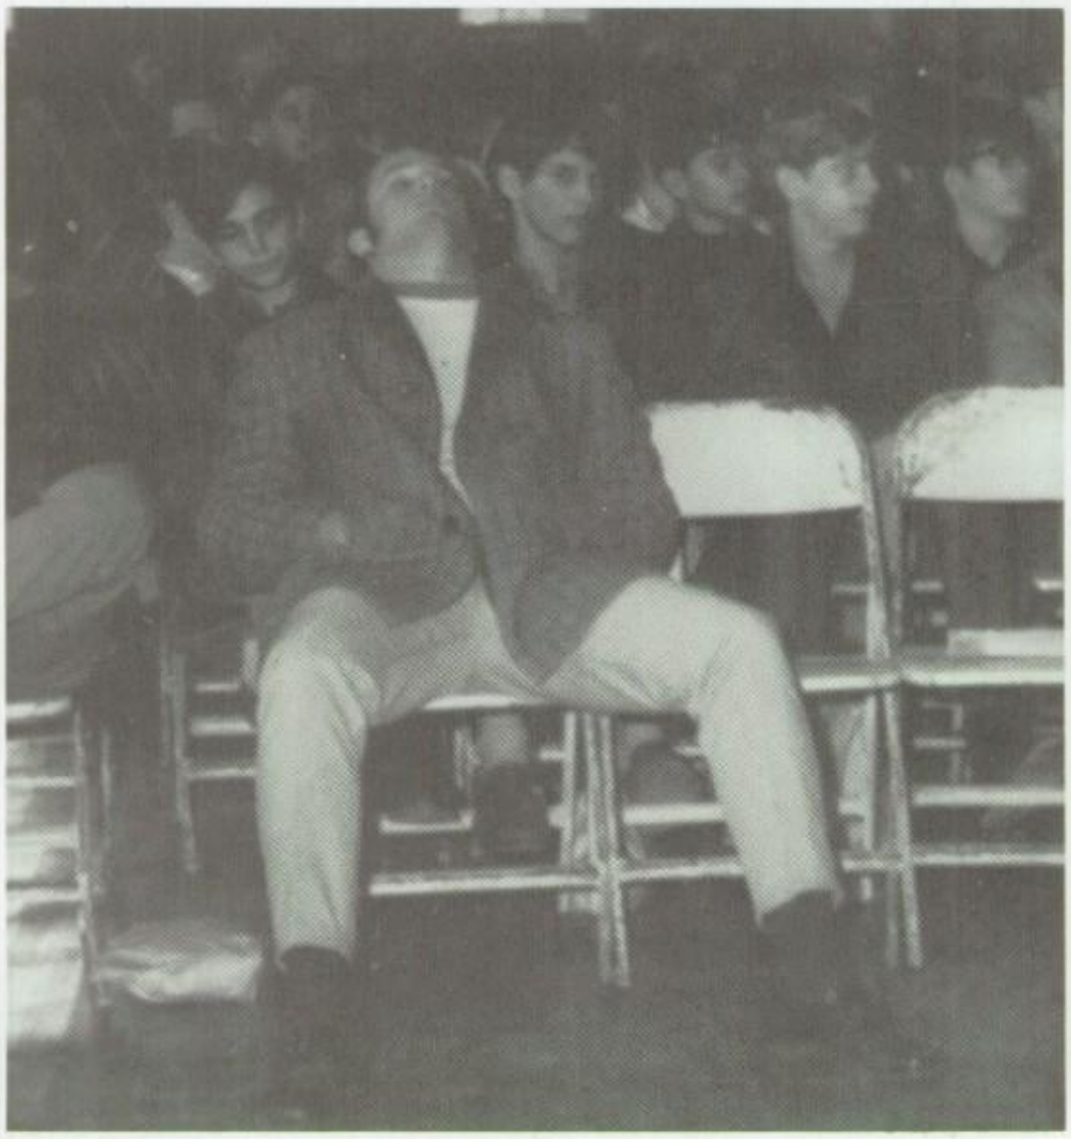
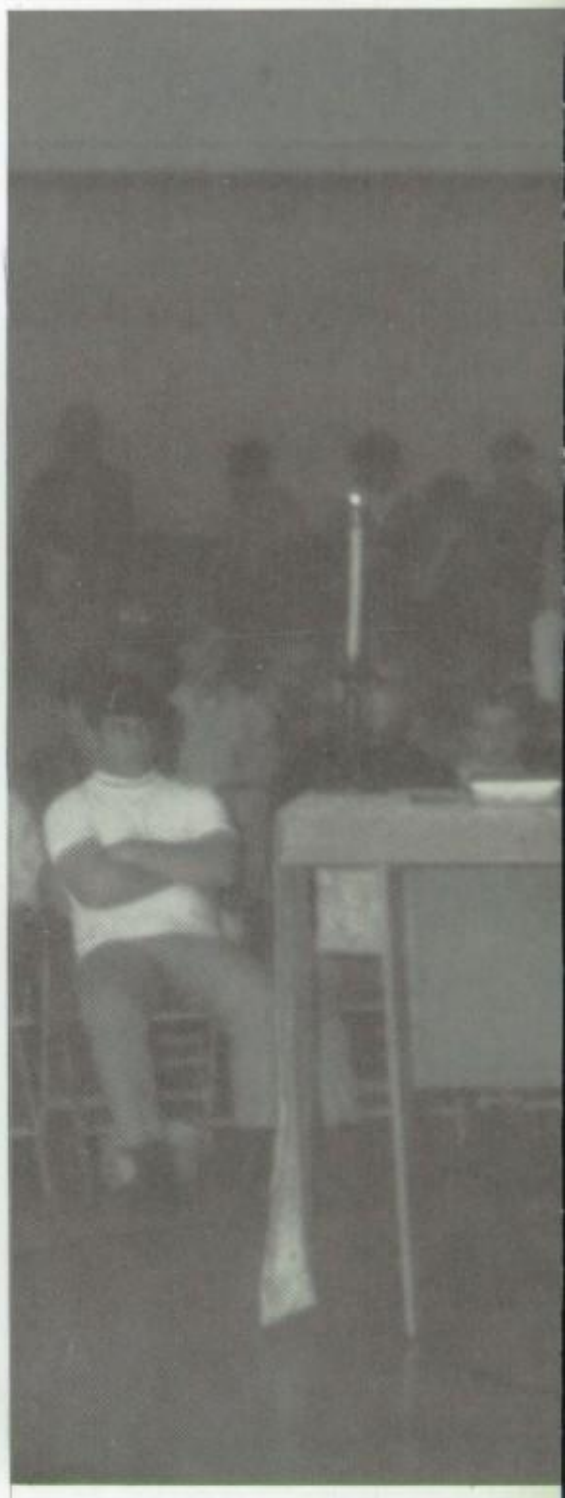
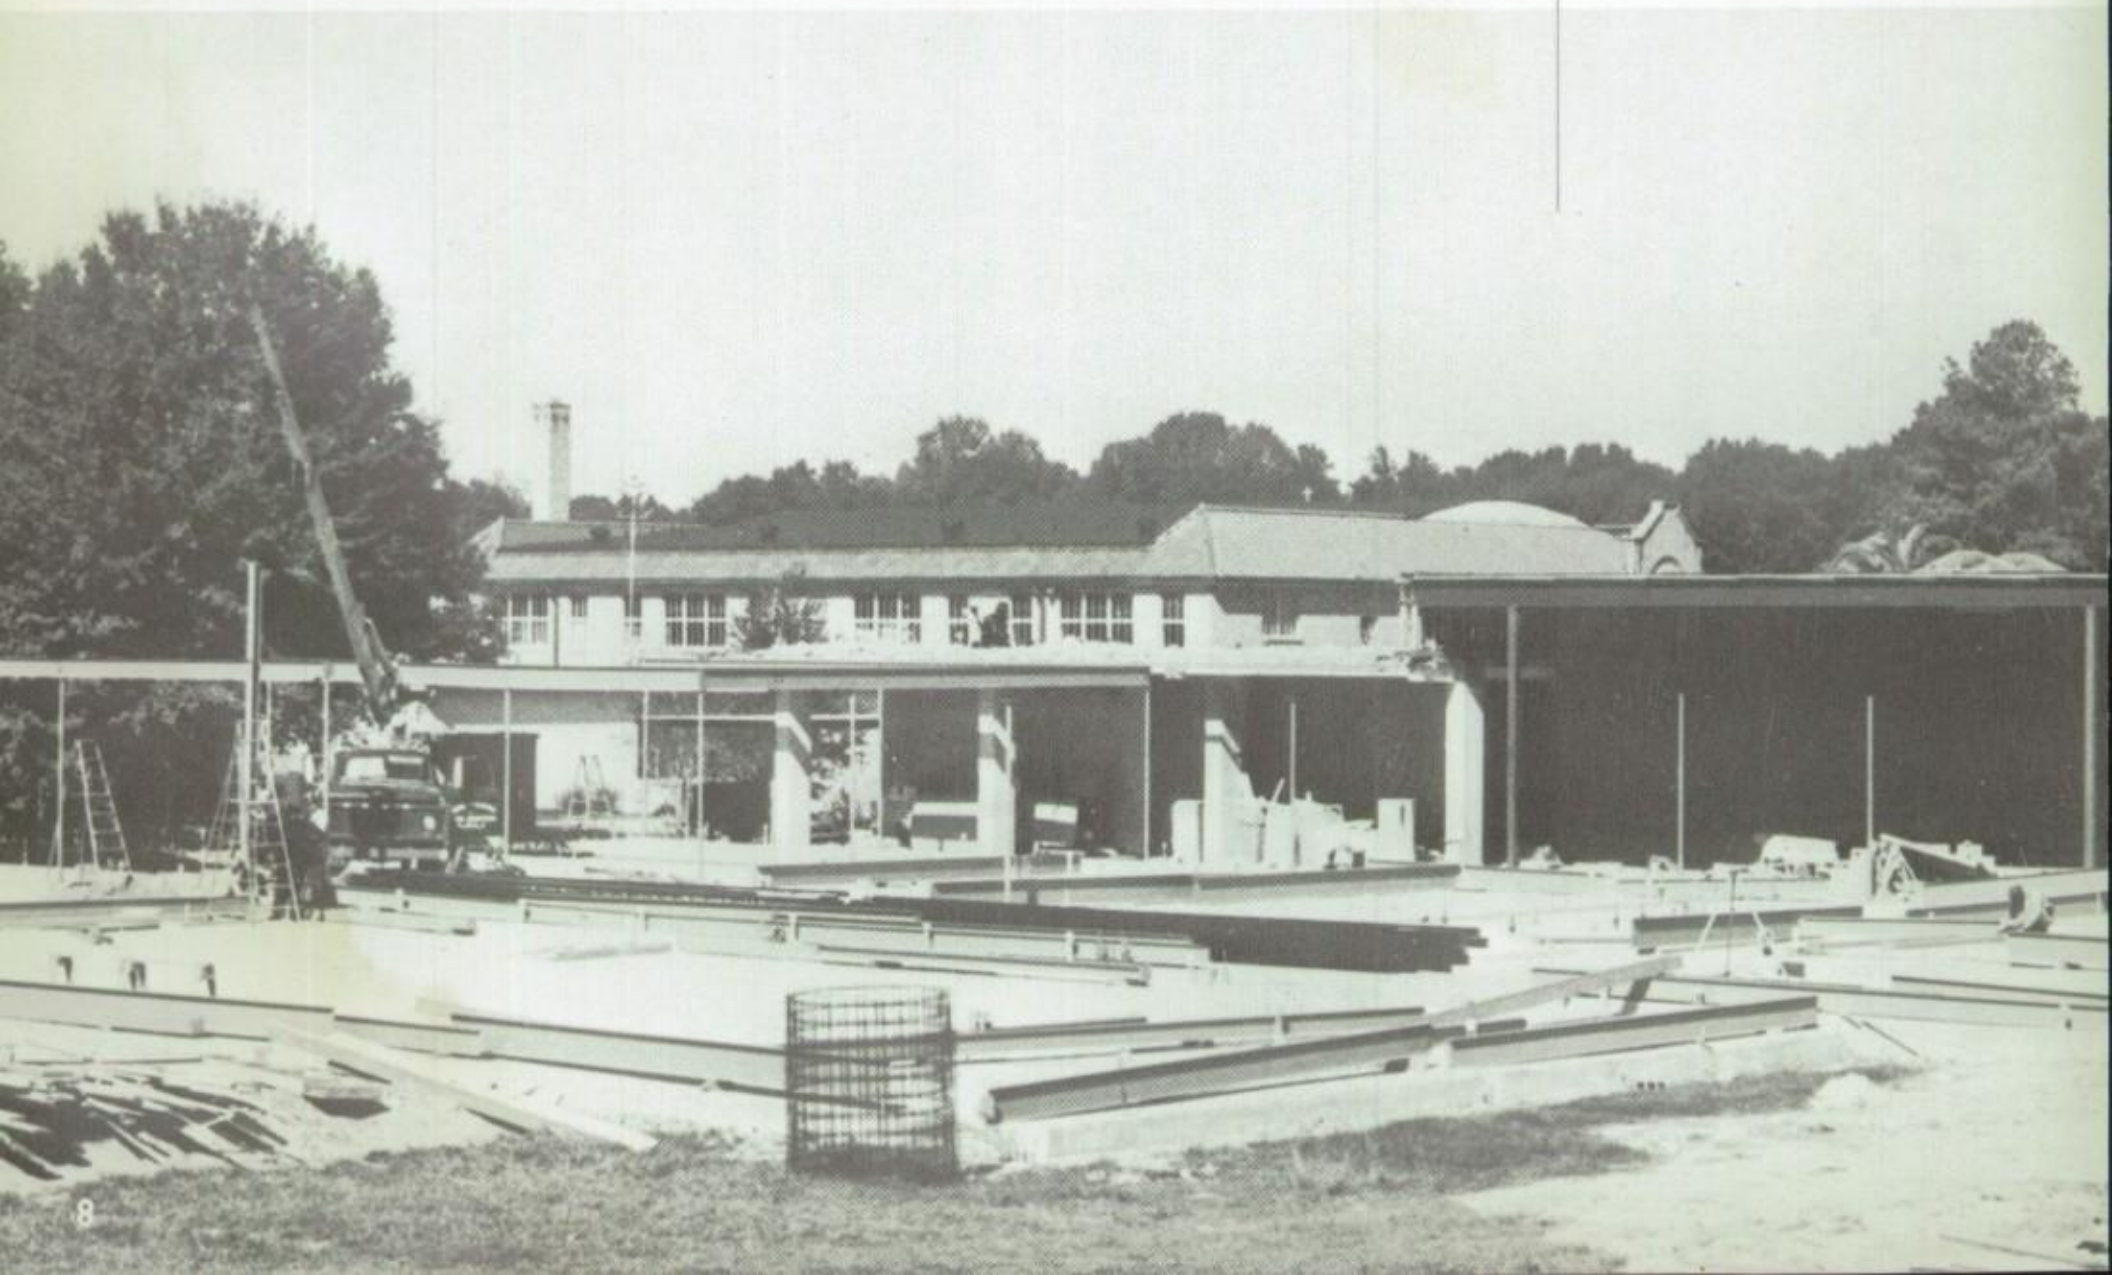
Different guests broadened our cultural horizons and made for new and different learning experiences.







The faculty as well as the students made the change from Old to New.

Joint spirit aided in the transaction from the OLD TO THE NEW.
